

Research & Development Coordination Office: Role Description

The Research and Development Coordination Office of the School of Foreign Languages at Pamukkale University was established to manage, support and promote research activities within the institution.

The unit coordinates the enhancement of teaching and learning activities as well as the evaluation processes of implemented practices.

Its core mission is to carry out academic and innovative studies to assess the services and opportunities offered to students, academic staff and administrative personnel; and, in line with the findings obtained, to prepare an action plan aimed at improving existing conditions and increasing the institution's sustainability performance.
